EVERYTHING ABOUT THE CONFERENCE IN THE APP

In the application, you will follow the schedule and all the information about the event, accreditation and cultural presentations.

Traditional people and communities will feature prominently throughout the three days of The Amazon and New Economies International Conference. They will be the protagonists of the panel Indigenous and Traditional Peoples: A New Economy Based on Ancestral Practices. Indigenous peoples, maroon communities (quilombolas) and riverside dwellers (ribeirinhos) will also participate in other panels.

A DIVERSE AND INCLUSIVE CONFERENCE

Diversity and plurality are hallmarks of the Conference. Among the 180 speakers, 35% are women; 33% are leaders and representatives of NGOs; 24% from the private sector; 8% of traditional peoples and local representatives.
